

Experiences of family violence among Vietnamese women on partner visas

RESEARCH PARTICIPANTS NEEDED

About the study:

This project seeks to explore the following:

- How does migration status affect family violence dynamics in the Vietnamese-Australian community?
- What barriers do Vietnamese-Australian women who experience family violence whilst on sponsored partner visas face when seeking family violence support?

About you:

We are looking for service providers who have supported Vietnamese migrant women experiencing family violence in Australia.

Service providers may include: support workers, social workers, migration agents, healthcare professionals, mental health workers, interpreters and more.

Participation involves:

An interview exploring your professional experiences supporting Vietnamese migrant women who have navigated family violence. Interviews will be 30-45 minutes long, audio recorded (unless otherwise preferred), and located at a convenient place or online.
